

Doctor Jac Launches New Book

Undaunted Lovers* Chronicles US Naval Intelligence Officer's Forbidden Relationship

SAN JOSE, September 15, 2016-With a few exceptions, writers have rarely attempted to deal with the intrigue of interracial love during a military situation set in Asia. Seldom is real romance in dangerous military settings portrayed.

Award winning author Doctor Jac reopened the door to this unexplored genre in 2014 with Rough Waters, a semi-biographical story of a naval intelligence officer in love with a married but brilliant Chinese woman. He tells the life of a boy growing up in a small Midwestern town who escaped for a wild time in college, then went on to join naval intelligence. A series of clandestine adventures in Asia Pacific, the tragic death of his son and psychosis of his wife culminate in a return home and mending old family wounds. In the end he finds his true love.

Doctor Jac follows up with Undaunted Lovers, the first book of the Spies with Benefits series. He crafts the spellbinding chronicle of Lieutenant Michael Holmes and Liu Chan-Juan's frustrating relationship.

Undaunted Lovers was a prize winner in the 2016 San Francisco Peninsula Literary Arts contest in May, with judges saying of the book, "Beautiful language, insightful and nuanced."

Undaunted Lovers will be available in paperback on September 1st on Amazon.com.

About Doctor Jac

After graduating from Notre Dame in 1959, Doctor Jac became a naval intelligence officer serving in Asia Pacific. Upon his discharge he entered the business world and for six years attended night school to earn his Ph.D. He then developed a method for measuring and predicting the return on investment of corporate employee development programs. He is known as Doctor Jac in 46 countries by the nearly 100,000 people he trained. Two of his twelve nonfiction books won national book of the year awards in 1991 and 2001. By 2000 he had sold his company, Saratoga Institute, which still operates as the Saratoga Division of PricewaterhouseCoopers. By 2013, in his 80th year, he decided to stop traveling, play golf and write fiction. A year later Rough Waters was published. At the urging of his fans he has now launched the Spies with Benefits series.
